Dear Hiring Manager,

My name is Steffen Heltne, and I am currently studying frontend development while actively building my skills through personal and academic projects. I am passionate about creating structured, accessible, and user-friendly digital solutions using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript.

Technology has always been a strong interest of mine, and development allows me to combine creativity with problem-solving. I enjoy working with clean code, mobile-first design, and building interfaces that are both functional and intuitive.

Through my projects I have gained practical experience in building responsive websites, structuring code using DRY principles, and developing dynamic functionality using JavaScript. My portfolio demonstrates several projects where I have worked through the entire development process, from design ideas to live deployment.

I am especially motivated to continue growing as a developer and to contribute to a team where I can learn, collaborate, and build meaningful solutions. My goal is to develop into a full-stack developer over time while strengthening my frontend expertise.

In addition to my technical interest, I bring strong determination, curiosity, and a continuous drive to improve. I believe these qualities allow me to quickly adapt and contribute in a professional environment.

Thank you for taking the time to review my application and portfolio. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how I can contribute to your team.

Kind regards,
Steffen Heltne
